Selling a Masterpiece.
Miller, who was a farmer's son, having in mind his boyhood, teacher pointed his wonderful "Angeline." He took it to Paris and hawked it about, but no one would have it. At last the Russian minister gave him $500 for it. Six years after Miller's death the picture sold for $12,000, and in 1900 James P. Boston, president of the American Art association, bought it for $115,000. —New York Telegram.

Boric Acid Treatment.
In the treatment of small wounds, cuts, scratches, pin jags, boils and styes there is no safer and more effective remedy than a boric acid solution. All skin diseases are soothed by being bathed with it. Runarounds and various discharging diseases are disinfected and healed by being freely washed with it. Four heaping teaspoonsful of boric acid powder dissolved in a pint of boiling water is the correct strength to use. If kept tightly corked it will "keep" indefinitely. As it is so inexpensive and so easily prepared, it is rarely necessary to use anything but a freshly made solution. It may be used three or four times a day.

SPRINGS WE KNOW.
They Flourish in Many Brands From Bed to Mountain.
There are many different kinds of springs. Among others may be mentioned bed and mountain springs, athletic springs and the spring that comes, as a rule, once a year, which is advertised by poets. There is also the grasshopper's spring.
The poet's spring is almost invariably vernal and has crocuses and pussy willows; also winter flannels. It is sometimes accompanied by snow and hail. Hence hailing the spring is quite a common practice.
Mountain springs are used generally in summer. Every mountain spring which tastes bad enough has a hotel attached to it and spends its time in curling people of imaginary ailments and tank accounts.
Bed springs usually come in rows and are gracefully concealed from the view by slabs of breakfast food arranged in the form of hair mattresses. The row around the edge always towers above its neighbors in the center, which modestly sink to permit your tired body to lie itself up into a graceful knot, while you dream of crossing the desert of Sahara on a nervous dromedary.—Life.

Consider the Bee!
The honey comes first—then follows the sting.
The honey of any purchase, comes when you think you are getting a low price. The sting follows—when you find that the low price meant low quality.
Some sting—makes you forget all about the honey and look for a club.
Meanwhile the bee has flown. He may never sting you again; but the first time was plenty.
